

An Teallach, Winter

By Ian McCabe

Iced pinnacles glow red above
Dark Toll an Lochain's hearth,
The embers of the setting sun
 Soon die to winter's dark.
On bellowing Corrag Bhuidhe
Spindrift sears above the gorge:
If crampons slip, then we are ash
 In the cold heart of the Forge.